Why PLURI?

We are dedicated to strengthening European identity through linguistic diversity.

Our mission is to normalize multilingual life paths, promote language rights, and challenge harmful linguistic stereotypes. We advocate for inclusive frameworks like translanguaging, which recognize the full linguistic repertoire of every speaker.

We aim to create a collaborative community, where educators, parents, students, and education authorities can exchange ideas, debate policies, and support language activism.

By engaging with educators, both in-service and in training, we harness their influence to create lasting social change. The involvement of families fosters a positive language environment, while student voices remain central, ensuring policies reflect their lived experiences.

What's on offer?

Language discussion club

These social meet-ups address language challenges and highlight best practices. The club encourages participants to switch between learner and expert roles.

Teacher training

The 3-day training will introduce participants to translanguaging, so they can start applying it in their classrooms.

Research panel

A space for academics who study or practice translanguaging to exchange knowledge, and gather insights from the project.

Deep dives

A space for citizens: experts, practitioners, and persons with lived experience of multilingualism to exchange knowledge in a safe environment.

Art workshops

Workshops highlight personal experiences of multilingualism, empowering participants through creative expression.

Language station

We organize co-creation workshops to develop content for the language station that will then be tested in a classroom pilot.
